Amusements

Orpheum.

Such little "tricks" as they are on the stage, but off-the-stage, are the essence of good "palshin" if you will pardon the creation of a new word and just plain regular girls. As the Marmelstein altera came running off the stage from their "soul" act Tuesday afternoon at the Orpheum, they laughed merrily. Afterward in the dressing room they were adorable, lovable, girls. "That's the secret of the act," Marian, the younger gaily declared. "It's the greatest compliment we can pay to our audience. We want people to get the impression that we are just a bunch of girls, and to see themselves as others see them, in the 'smile' dance, instead of to see how gracefully we can kick, or how well we can toe dance."
